LINER EUROPA WRESTS TITLE FROM BREMEN

50,000 Ton Speed Demon
Crosses Atlantic In 4 Days,
16 Hours, 48 Minutes

NEW YORK, March 25.—Conquering wind and storm in the speediest steamship crossing of the ocean on record, the magnificent new North German Lloyd Liner Europa early today wrested the coveted blue ribbon of the Atlantic from her sister ship the Bremen.

Sweeping past Ambrose channel lightship on the outskirts of New York harbor at 5:45 a. m. Eastern Standard Time, the 50,000 ton speed demon of the seas completed the run from Cherbourg breakwater in four days, 16 hours and 48 minutes, according to officials of the North German Lloyd Line.

This achievement enabled the Europa to better by 36 minutes the previous record crossing of the Atlantic, established by the Bremen last October.

This record was 54 minutes better than the Bremen's maiden crossing, made in July of last year, of four days, 17 hours and 42 minutes. It was that trip which enabled the Bremen to seize the queenhood of the seas from the Cunard Liner Mauretania, which had previously held the record undisputed since her launching 21 years before.

An official report sent to his home offices by Commander Nicolas Johansen, proud skipper of the sleek new liner, gave the Europa's average speed on her maiden crossing as approximately 28 knots. The Bremen's average speed on her record trip was 27.72 knots.

Under fog blanketed New York harbor as the glitzy new vessel, filled to capacity with a representative list of passengers, swept past the lightship and through the entrance of the inner harbor to quarantine.

The new liner, its squat funnels swirled in a blanket of mist, dropped anchor at Quarantine at 7:05 a. m., beating the Bremen's best time to this point by 36 minutes.

Other vessels in the harbor screamed a whistled welcome to the new queen of the seas as she steamed majestically into the harbor. She was paid the tribute of a conqueror, and deserved the ovation, for nothing like the smiling weather that lay in the Bremen's path all the way greeted the Europa on her maiden journey.

Daniels Asks 100-Year Trial of Prohibition

Josephus Daniels, a veteran prohibitionist, whose order as Secretary of the Navy made the navy dry, charged that the Federal Government itself, and particularly some departments of the government, have failed to use the power they possess to enforce prohibition.

Daniels appeared as one of the dry witnesses before the House Judiciary Committee, which is considering modification legislation.

AMERICANS FOUND DEAD

Dr. Ernest Watzl and Cleveland Woman Identified in Austrian Hotel.

VIENNA, MARCH 25.—As strange a story as any from fiction's pages was being unfolded by the police here today as they probed the deaths of Dr. Ernest Watzl, Austrian Chemist and inventor who made a fortune in the United States, and a woman who was identified as Mrs. Mary Horvath MacGranahan, of Cleveland.

The pair were found dead in the fashionable Hotel Sacher here. Police believe Watzl shot his companion and then turned the gun on himself.

The couple had resistered at the hotel, which in pre-war days was the rendezvous of Austrian Aristocracy, last Wednesday as Mr. and Mrs. Johann Flassak of Cleveland. Further investigation showed the woman had masqueraded as Mme. Josefa Kropel, but she was later identified, according to the police, as Mrs. MacGranahan.

The body of Dr. Watzl was identified by his father, a well-known Viennese watchmaker. He had long believed his son to be dead.

According to information here, Dr. Watzl disappeared from Cleveland about five months ago. At the same time Mrs. MacGranahan said to have formerly been a model, disappeared from her home in that city. Police declared Mrs. MacGranahan's husband previously had sued Dr. Watzl for $50,000 charging alienation of affections.

Rhodes was arrested just before noon Monday by Deputy Sheriffs, Ward, Porter and Fissell and Probation Officer L. M. Brown when a 50-gallon still, warm from operation, was found under his home, which sits back from the highway.

The plane went into a spin at a height of 500 feet and crashed to the ground where it burst into flames.

Beery said the plane functioned perfectly when he had it aloft for a flight Sunday.

May Suspend Naval Parley

LONDON, March 25.—Possibility of a full year's suspension of the London naval disarmament conference loomed today as the delegates met to discuss the proposal of Foreign Minister Dino Grandi of Italy that the parley adjourn for six months to permit France and Italy to settle their differences.

British officials were outspoken in their belief that if the proposed adjournment were taken, it would be at least a year before the five powers could be convoked into a conference again.

For this reason it is regarded as highly probable that substantial efforts will be made to reach some sort of a tentative agreement as speedily as possible. Once scattered, it is believed, the conference would be almost impossible to call together again.

Prime Minister J. Ramsey MacDonald called a meeting of the heads of the five delegations for this afternoon, following an hour and a half's conversation with Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson. It was understood the adjournment proposal was discussed in detail.

Should the adjournment procedure be adopted, it is likely the British, American and Japanese delegates would formulate a three-power agreement immediately. This, however, would not be signed until it had been converted into a five-power pact to include France and Italy. In a tripartite pact were completed immediately and signed, it is feared the chances of getting France and Italy into a conference would be practically nil.

Latest reports from Tokyo indicate the Japanese foreign office has overruled the navy department's insistence that counter-proposals be made to the Japanese-American compromise. It now appears the Japanese reply will accept the compromise practically as it stands.

Louise Dumesnil, French Navy Minister today gave the American delegation assurance that France is anxious to complete a five-power pact if humanly possible.

BAD ACCIDENT IS CAUSED BY WET HIGHWAY

L. A. Marshall, Lima, In Hospital, Result of Wreck Near Mackey Ford Rd.

L. A. Marshall, aged 40, a salesman for the Phillips and Davies Co., excavators of Kenton, O., was seriously injured at 4 p. m. Monday when the Chevrolet sedan he was driving south was struck by the Reo speedwagon truck driven by Albert Denton, Columbus, just south of the Mackeyford rd on the Columbus-pk.

The truck driven by Denton was one of the David Davies packing house trucks and was returning to Columbus from hauling meat through the southern part of the state.

Marshall is suffering from a fractured lower jaw, a fractured fibula bone in his ankle, many cuts and bruises and possibly internal injuries according to Dr. R. S. Hosler of Ashville, who attended him at the service station at the scene of the accident. He was rushed to Grant hospital in the E. F. Schlegel ambulance.

Denton is suffering a possible fractured leg.

The accident is said to have occurred when the Reo speedwagon driven north by Denton skidded in trying to negotiate the curve and drove directly into the front of the Chevrolet forcing it back into the ditch at the side of the road. Marshall was thrown forward with such force that the steering wheel was broken and smashed through the windshield. The front end of the Chevrolet was driven back against the body of the car with everything on the front of the car completely demolished.

R. C. Younce, of Pittsburgh, a salesman with his offices in Columbus, said that he was driving toward Columbus at a rate of 40 miles per hour when the truck passed him just before it reached the curve.

Several men who were standing near the filling station at the curve said Marshall passed the station driving very cautiously on account of the wet pavement which made driving on the pike very dangerous.

The left front of the Reo truck was badly damaged, the wheel was driven back under the motor, the axle was broken and the windshield cracked by the impact.

Sheriff Frank Davis and Deputy Doggy Ward answered the call.

While a number of curious persons were inspecting the wreck a Ford coupe came near adding a third car to the heap. Its driver evidently forgot to heed the slippery roads and when he approached the wreck was traveling at a fast rate of speed. He put on his brakes for the curve and after skidding first to the right and then the left he straightened his car out and went on. Several of the spectators scrambled to cover while the skidding party was going on.

TRAFFIC TIED UP BY 2-INCH CHICAGO SNOW

Air Mail and Train Schedules Abandoned Due To Severity of Storm.

CHICAGO, March 25.—An unusual spring blizzard lashed the Chicago area today, crippling automobile traffic and tying up train schedules.

Driven before a northwest gale, more than two inches of snow had fallen early today. Shortly after midnight a steady rain turned to snow and a heavy fall which continued all night blanketed the southern lake Michigan area.

In many places the wind had drifted piles of snow to a depth of two feet. Air mail schedules here were temporarily abandoned due to the severity of the storm.

One death was attributed to the spring blizzard. Edgar Tompkins, 42, a post office employee was found dead on the sidewalk near his home with his neck broken. Apparently he slipped and fell.

C. A. Donnel, weather forecaster, said the blizzard threatened to continue unabated throughout the day and night, and possibly tomorrow morning. The official snowfall at 7 a. m. was 2.1 inches.

The worst spring blizzard in Chicago's history was on March 30 and 31, 1926 when 12.6 inches of snow fell.

The maximum wind velocity reported today was 60 miles an hour at the Evanston guard station. Chicago surface lines had to sweepers out, but ice packed patches caused several accidents. Surface cars also were delayed by stalled motor-trucks on the streets. County highway police were warned to be on the lookout for wrecks. Trees were blown down in some points, blocking highway travel. It was reported here that the storm covered the entire country west from the Mississippi River eastward to Ballfornia, Pa. with the storm center over Indianapolis and moving eastward.

U.S. ATTORNEY TO AID INDIAN

Arrival of Richard Templeton Brings Excitement—Prosecutor Objects.

By JAMES L. KILGALLAN.
COURTROOM, BUFFALO, Mar. 25.—The United States government today formally entered the trial of Lila Jimerson, Indian girl, charged with the murder of Mrs. Clothilde Marchand, who Richard H. Templeton, United States attorney for western New York, appeared in court and was accepted as a co-counsel for the defense.

He informed Judge F. Bret Thorn that he had received instructions from the attorney general of the United States to take part in the trial.

Vigorous objections to the appearance of the government's attorney in the case was made by District Attorney Guy B. Moore, who is prosecuting Miss Jimerson. "I deeply resent this interference on the part of the government," indignantly declared Moore.

U. S. Attorney Templeton asked court to adjourn the trial so he could familiarize himself with the case and Judge Thorn granted an adjournment until 2 o'clock this afternoon.

CLEVELAND BAKER BOY WINS DECISION OVER BIG CAMPOLO

By David J. Walsh
NEW YORK, March 25.—They were selling "Foreign Menace" short in the cauliflower mart today, following the momentary failure of Victoria Campolo, the soaring Alp from the Argentine, to win last night from Jonny Risko, a man who obviously was his inferior in everything except raw courage. Campolo did more than fail to win, he actually succeeded in losing to the man who was almost thirty pounds and some 7 and 1-2 inches shorter, a verdict in which the referee, one judge and Mrs. Walsh's favorite son concurred.

Risko won because he had the bigger heart, this being an asset to which Campolo had no adequate rejoinder. All he had was the bigger feet.

Some thought the decision was exemplary, others said it was a laundry ticket. But, right or wrong, Campolo didn't have a leg under him as far as prestige was concerned when the tenth round was over. They call him a foreign threat, yet with a pull in the weights and with reach and height preponderantly in his favor, he refused to go to a man whose punch won't dent your derby.

Foreign menace? It is to laugh. Dempsey might be so terrible that he can't walk down the block without suffering a nervous breakdown and still he would be too good for the Campolos of this world. The man simply wouldn't go on and win after almost knocking Risko out in the first three rounds. He did the same thing at Miami last month, so it must be congenial. The local boxing commission would have none of a Risko-Campolo match at the time but, after what happened last night, it probably changed its mind. It probably suspects now that in prize fighting the size of the heart is more important than the size of the feet.

Incidentally, last night's event was the commission's own show, a benefit performance for the local Cancer Hospital, and it died pitifully in its own blood. There was less than 8,000 in the place at the pay-off and most of these sat up there on the ceiling in the two dollar chairs. Apparently the golden days of pugilism in New York are definitely no more.

Apparently, too, smart money isn't as intelligent as it used to be. It was sent in heavily on Campolo at 11 to 5 and, in the long run, everybody went for what they call "a bath," i.e., overboard.

ROSIES TAKE COURT TITLE

Great Cleveland Pro Team Wins Championship From Rochester Centrals.

CLEVELAND, Mar. 25.—With a smashing offensive in the second that routed the Rochester Centrals to the tune of 21 to 25, Cleveland's cage kings today had brought the world's professional basketball championship to this city for the second time in succession and the third time in the history of the American league.

The concluding fracas of the title series here last night was a game of games. By no means did the Centrals hand out the championship to the Clevelanders on a silver platter. Playing fast and furious basketball, the Rochester quintet fought desperately for a win which would have earned the series back to their home floor.

During the first half, the Clevelanders were held to seven-all tie—not only held, but actually outplayed at times. Tommy Allen snagged the first goal of the game for Rochester last night within three minutes of play. It was not until 13 minutes later that Cleveland caged its first field goal through Pete Barry.

The second half was the downfall of the Rochester cagers. The Cleveland quintet was unbeatable and invincible. Joe Lapchick led the scoring for the local outfit, snagging eight points. Lefty Kintzing, Central's doughty left guard, also tallied eight points for the scoring honors of the Rochester team.

OHIO CHAMBER COMMERCE
FIGHTS CORPORATION TAX

COLUMBUS, O.—That a campaign to reduce incorporation fees and the corporation taxes in the state of Ohio to put Ohio on the same level with other competitive states catering to industry and industrial development, is under way, is evidenced in a letter sent by Frank B. McMillin, President of the Ohio Chamber of Commerce to presidents and secretaries of local chambers of commerce, urging them to work for the development of an informed public opinion in this matter.

President McMillin points out an objectionable feature of Ohio's incorporation fees, is found in a charge of $25,000 to $100,000 for filing and recording articles of incorporation, when the cost of service to the state is no more than the cost of recording deeds. A corporation should not be penalized for introducing business into the state.

That Ohio's incorporation fees are out of joint with other progressive industrial states catering to industry is indicated when a comparison of fees is made. In Ohio, a company having a capitalization of $100,000 with stock with par value of $100, pays an incorporation fee of $100; Delaware, $50; Maryland, $20; Michigan, $50; Missouri, $75; New Jersey, $25; Virginia, $20; New York, $50; and West Virginia, $10. This comparison shows that Ohio is severely handicapped in the industrial world.

In laying the matter before the members of the Ohio Chamber, Mr. McMillin states:

"I wish to lay before you a matter which I feel is of great importance to every corporation in the State of Ohio and, in turn, to every citizen of Ohio. I refer to the schedule of incorporation fees and the incorporation franchise tax provided by this commonwealth. This is a matter of business—not politics."

"Men who are disposed to risk their capital in the industry and business of the state, in the hope of adding to the wealth of the state and the prosperity of the citizens, should not be penalized. I, therefore, urge every man to take an interest in this proposition as a matter of business. Through proper channels, this matter should be brought to the attention of every member of the Ohio General Assembly to the end that Ohio business may be put on a basis where it can compete with the business of other states."

"This discrimination in favor of one class of shares against another as provided in the present incorporation fee law, compels business men to fit and adjust their organizations to the fee schedule which the state of Ohio sees fit to impose. I submit to you that the law should be adjusted to the requirements of the business men, not the business adjusted and distorted to fit the law."

"If the state must charge more than the cost of service, the charge should not be unreasonable; and should it cost no more to record in one case than another, a reasonable sliding scale of fees based on the number of shares would not be objectionable if it were fairly arranged and bore some kind of reasonable relation to the fees charged in other progressive industrial states."

"With reference to corporation franchise taxes, the state of Indiana provides for no such tax after the original tax, which is regarded as the 'birth tax,' is paid. Other states, which maintain an equitable attitude toward industry, are levying much lower corporation franchise taxes than Ohio."

"In making these statements, I want you to know that the Taxation Committee of the Ohio Chamber of Commerce has devoted a great deal of study to these subjects during the past several years."

Mr. McMillin expressed the hope

USE SUBSTITUTES
FOR MOTHER HEN

Report Shows Only 43 Per Cent of Chickens Are Hatched Under Hens.

Mechanical substitutes for the fluffy old mother hen are fast crowding the faithful old biddy off her nests on farms throughout the country, according to reports sent to the United States department of agriculture by the crop correspondents of the bureau of agricultural economics. Only 43 per cent of all chickens raised are still hatched under hens, the report indicates.

It is worthy of note that in those sections where farm poultry flocks have reached their highest efficiency as profit producers, incubator chicks are used in far greater proportion. In the north-eastern, central western and far western states, where poultry is an important source of farm income, the farm flocks are being raised in a more scientific manner, and incubator-hatched chicks are in the majority. In the South, where farm poultry is not a major source of farm income, a large share of the flocks are grown from hen hatched chicks.

This finding of the department of agriculture coincides with the reports from the contest conducted last year by hatcheries which operated under the slogan, "Hatchery Chicks For Greater Profits." Every one of the 41,000 letters from farmers throughout the nation told of profits from farm flocks, after they had started using the hatchery product.

Reasons for this quite apparent, when the history of the poultry industry through the past few years is reviewed. Continued improvement by the hatcherymen has made available hens with high average laying capacity. Farmers have discovered that a comparatively small investment will bring a proportionally large return, provided, of course, of proper methods and a fair amount of attention are given their flocks.

Sanitation, observance of proper feeding methods, and attention to the poultry and egg markets, are essentials of profitable poultry raising with which farmers are becoming familiar, often under the tutelage of the hatcheries from which chicks are purchased.

AUTOPSY ORDERED ON MERRILL BODY

CHICAGO.—An autopsy was ordered performed Monday on the body of John E. Merrill, 73, former district attorney, of Queens County, New York, who was the object of a year's search following his disappearance with a $5,400 fireman's association fund.

Merrill's body was found in his room at the great Northern Hotel yesterday where he was registered as Ford S. Porter. He had lived there since September.

George Sohns, Jr., of Richmond Hill, N. Y., a son-in-law of Merrill, aided in the identification of the body. Police notified Sohns when a note bearing his name was found in the room. In a money belt which the missing prosecutor wore police found $850 in cash.

BAND ATTACKS
BERLIN SCHOOL

BERLIN, Mar. 25.—A large band of communists made an unsuccessful attempt Monday to storm the compulsory education institute at Struvshof, and free its inmates.

Advised of the communist plan before hand, police nipped the attack before it could get under way, arresting 120 members of the party.

There were no casualties.

CAMPAIGN

Candidates have the false idea that when they do one good week's work they have an automobile won, and can loaf along during the rest of the campaign and don't need to care very much how the other candidates are doing. Such candidates should bear ever in mind the one fact, that all candidates are working for the same thing that they are, each one has the same chance to pile up a reserve vote on new and old subscriptions. Also that there are several live hustling candidates in the race who are busy and have been busy and will no doubt stay busy until the close of the campaign on April 16.

Candidates who feel sure of the prize now, will in all probability come out at the little end of the horn at the finish—and then will think what a decided "chump" I was to be over-confident.

The candid advice of the writer is simply this, and it goes for all candidates alike: The campaign is more than half over and no one is sure of any of the prizes now, therefore, it is up to you to make your hours count this week, next week and until the bell rings on the final night. This week all new subscriptions will triple the regular scale of votes after you have secured eight new ones. This is when each one should make the dust fly. Go out and get them, that is what it takes and unless you have the extra votes to back you up at the close you are beaten.

The candidate having the greatest number of votes will win, it makes no difference who that one may be, the high candidate will win and this week is positively the best chance you will have to get those prize winning votes.

Today another candidate takes the lead. Miss Louise Hoskins goes to the top of the list by casting 11,700 votes. Miss Louise is a most charming young lady and goes around smiling her greetings to all. She is pleased when she gets subscriptions and her friends promise to see her through the campaign. Miss Hoskins leads today, yet tomorrow some other may take her place.

VALUABLE RESEARCH

Sergius P. Grace, an officer of the Bell Telephone Laboratories, Inc., announces and demonstrates new scientific miracles—a "delay circuit" that "stores" human speech and delivers it into the human brain without the aid of the human voice; an "electrical larynx" which changes the impulses from telephone dials into speech, for the benefit of telephone operators; an amplifier that transforms a whisper or inaudible murmur into a great roar; mechanical contrivances by which the dumb can speak, etc. All these inventions will have their practical uses.

Mr. Grace points a moral: "Now is the time that industry in general should turn to research. Above all times we have the best opportunity right now to prepare for industrial progress. Don't let good men go. Keep them and let them engage in research and investigation. The time to do it is when production demands are not heavy. The firms wise enough to seize this opportunity will profit by it and cash in later."

Taking Kids Too Seriously

Announcement has been made in Los Angeles by the board of education that hereafter it will award high school diplomas not merely on the basis of scholarship, but on the basis of "character and citizenship." That is to say, students whose moral and civic qualities do not meet the approval of the board will not be allowed to graduate.

One's first impulse is to say that this sounds all right. Immorality and bad citizenship should be discouraged.

Much depends, however, on the test applied—the standards of character insisted on. The board is said to have acted as it did with a special view to crushing communistic tendencies in the high schools. It was alarmed by evidence of communism on the city's East Side.

Perhaps the school board takes this sort of thing too seriously. There isn't much communism in America, and what there is thrives mostly on opposition and publicity. Left alone, most of it would die out. At any rate, most cities would regard it as unnecessary to start an inquisition of this sort in the schools.

Communism is a variety of socialism. Possibly half the adult citizens in this country have had socialist leanings at some time or other, but nearly all of them have outlived it. Where is the Socialist Party now?

Unfledged high school students seldom know what they think about politics and economics; and if they have any decided opinions, they usually change them later.

Moreover, political and economic opinions haven't necessarily anything to do with character. Foolishness in the head is one thing; moral iniquity is something else.

"MASTER of MONEY" BY ROY VICKERS

CHAPTER XLIII.

"I was easy enough to say no and condemn you to death—and much easier to come up here and die with you if necessary, than stay down in the city and wait to hear that you had been killed. So here I am."

His pipe had gone out and he relit it.

"Devil of a row these fellows make!" he exclaimed. "Barbarous brutes, really. They dance, some evenings, like savages, only worse."

"I don't think the comitadjis are likely to turn up for a few days, anyhow. In the next few days we shall finish the truck up to that ridge you see over there. That will link on to the existing track which is in pretty good condition. We can then bring up stone from the quarries to finish the last twelve miles."

There was more about the track and she listened attentively, wondering why he made no allusion to Maurois.

"Now, I've been into this comitadj question with the officer in charge of the troops—a quite decent chap, though without a ha'porth of loyalty to his government."

"He is going to let me have a couple of machine guns—and I've already got fifty rifles and a store of ammunition from him. My idea is to finish up to that ridge in the next few days and then get down to the city, recruit about fifty Serbians, who fight like wild cats and thoroughly enjoy it, employ them as laborers, with their rifles handy, and if the comitadjis turn up—well, make them darned sorry for themselves. About twenty per cent of these laborers can be made to fight for us, and altogether we shan't make a bad show."

"Suppose you get killed?" she asked.

"Precisely! It would be pretty awkward for you if that were to happen. I know how to look after myself—we had a bit of this sort of trouble in Mexico—but there's always the risk. That's why I don't want you about the place."

"You might get wounded instead of killed. I shall stay. I can be of some use to you here even if nothing happens. I saw you doing some kind of accounts at that desk."

"Look here, Shirley, let me say that I appreciate your point of view—very thoroughly. At the same time, I cannot let you stay. To run this camp, especially if there's going to be anything in the nature of a scrap—I've got to be in a way that you very likely will consider uncivilized and brutal. Apart from the fact that you would simply be in the way, I don't think it would be wise to have a woman in the camp."

"I don't want to see you go," she said. "You won't turn me out, will you? I don't think I could order any of these men to leave me."

The Health Hazards In Industry

Despite Betterment of Conditions Today, There Is Still Much to Be Done to Safeguard Workers.

By R. S. COPELAND, M. D. U. S. Senator from New York. Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

ACCORDING to the latest Federal census, there are 42 million people employed in gainful occupations in this country. This is a vast army.

The machine age in which we live has given to the working man a higher standard of living than that possessed in any other age. He has shorter hours, better conditions of employment, and higher wages.

But the modern methods demand rigid, machine-like service which tends to make man's work equally mechanical. He is driven into grooves. Human values become machine values. The drabness and monotony of machine power is having its effects on the general health of workers, there is no doubt.

Very often do we hear that men, women and children are being exploited in the industrial world, but after all they are infinitely better off than in former times. In the old days, the industrial worker was exposed to many dangers. Children, especially, fell under the deplorable conditions of the sweat shop.

There are many problems yet to be solved. Not yet have industrial workers the proper physical examinations, fitness and physical disabilities must be detected and treated. Facilities for healthful living conditions in the home, and recreation sufficient to maintain health, are lacking in many industrial communities.

Today the health officer and the professional health worker are working hard to side to bring about better health conditions in many of these industrial communities. But there is still room for the regulation of health protection and health promotion in many states.

Education for the worker in industry is needed badly. He must have a proper knowledge of healthful living.

His home environment must be improved. His recreational facilities must be made an important part of his daily life. His health and mental vigor depend very much on the proper use of his leisure hours. He must have sufficient exercise, if he is working in a sedentary occupation, and plenty of fresh air and sunshine to keep physically fit.

We need further child protection in labor. Until 1903, there were no laws made preventing children from entering dangerous trades. Since that time 50 occupations have been closed to children under sixteen years of age.

Children in industry are exposed to all sorts of contagion, and infection in early youth takes a heavy toll in diseases in later life. These diseases from various infections of the body are called the "degenerative diseases." It is a tremendous problem to meet—the health hazards of children in industry.

Safety measures for the protection of workers in industry are many, and yet we are appalled at the great number of accidents among factory employees, and those in other occupations. More protection for workers is needed, more knowledge on the part of the worker how to maintain good health.

William Nigh and Harry Beaumont, co-directors of the production, left room for a number of Technicolor revues and Albertina Rasch ballets which in themselves are alone worth seeing. There are also a variety of song hits written by Nacio Herb Brown and Arthur Freed.

The cast includes Cliff Edwards, Benny Rubin, Drew Demorest, John Byron, Rita Flynn, Hazel Craven, Gino Corrado and Paulette Paquet.

German and American Interests Reach Agreement to Arrange Schedules

NEW YORK, MAR. 25—Trans-Atlantic Zeppelein service was a step nearer today following announcement that German and American financial and industrial concerns had signed an agreement to proceed with plans for establishing international airship schedules.

Charles E. Mitchell, chairman of the board of the national city bank and Dr. Hugo Eckener, commander of the Graf Zeppelin, announced the agreement had been signed by the National City Bank, German Zeppelin Company, Good-year Zeppelin Corporation, the United Aircraft and Transport Corporation, International Zeppelin Transport Corporation and other banking and industrial organizations.

Signing of the agreement marks the first important cooperation between heavier-than-air and lighter-than-air craft in establishing regular passenger and mail service.

Airships to be used in the service, it was understood, will be built in this country and abroad. At the outset the trans-ocean airship trips will be limited to north-Atlantic.

No definite date for the start of the airship service has been set but actual preparation will be started in 1931 or possibly sooner.

OBITUARY

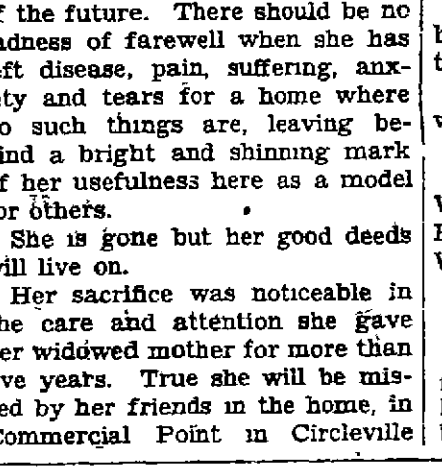

I watched her breath until it passed from sight,
I watched the sacred form,
When the breath took flight.
At last it was gone and
Like a thought—Had
Slipped away, had vanished,
And was not.
Just when the birds are returning from warmer climes; the grass growing so green on our lawns; the buds swelling and all nature buoyant with growth—a beautiful life has been brought to a close, when a pale shadow spread its mantle over a frail form and the spirit of our beloved sister slipped its moorings and sailed away.
Ella Mae, daughter of Wm. and Alice Ryan Durrett was born near Commercial Point, Pickaway County, Ohio, April 8, 1887 and was promoted to the Heavenly Home, March 10, 1930, aged 42 years, 11 months and 2 days.
Her early life was spent with the family on the farm and she graduated from the Commercial Point High School in 1906. The same year she gave her heart to God—joined the M. E. Church of that village when Rev. Cunningham was pastor and through these years she has lived true to her convictions. How consoling then to her loved ones that she "crossed the bar" with such bright hopes of the future. There should be no sadness of farewell when she has left disease, pain, suffering, anxiety and tears for a home where no such things are, leaving behind a bright and shining mark of her usefulness here as a model for others.
She is gone but her good deeds will live on.
Her sacrifice was noticeable in the care and attention she gave her widowed mother for more than five years. True she will be missed by her friends in the home, in Commercial Point in Circleville and Columbus where she has made her home at different times. She has lived in our city now for sometime with her sister where she has been so sick but she exercised patience and great fortitude through suffering greatly at times.
She expressed faith in her Savior to the last and submitted to His will.
He doeth all things well,
We say it now in tears,
But we shall say it with
Those we love—
Through bright immortal years.
Ella's influence can never pass out of the lives of those about her and with whom she mingled. Her Christian experience was such that she seemed to step from her earthly home to her mansion on High with out dread or fear for she said she was ready and we try to visualize the greetings from her Lord as he welcomed her with the "Well done, good and faithful servant." This is another challenge to us to work while it is day for the night cometh when no one can work. Besides being a member of the M. E. Church, she belonged to the Woman's Benefit Association of Macabees and Bay Leaf Review No. 215. She has a sister Cornelia and six brothers, Frank, Heber, Leonard, Ross, Glenn and Shelby. Many relatives and friends to mourn her departure.
Ella passed this way but once but the world is enriched and better by her having lived in it.
So Lord, what is life if spent with Thee?
Industry, praise and prayer,
However short or long it be,
We need but little care,
Because Eternity will last
When life and death itself are past.

News of the Homes and Home Folks

Published by STEVENSON'S

VOL. 2. No. 32

Tuesday, March 25, 1930

With only a few distant precincts yet to be heard from—it looks as though our little venture was all over but the shouting. As a matter of fact, we heard a lot of shouting down our street the other night, and we are inclined to believe that some of the shouting is over with, too.

At any rate, the returns (which we forgot to count) were nothing less than splendid. It is true that lots of folks weren't quite sure just what was going to be decided by this vote, but oddly enough, we weren't either, and that makes us all even. It certainly is strange how some affairs seem to work out by themselves.

Withal, we discovered one thing. We discovered that the majority of folks voted "thumbs up" on our class of merchandise, that our prices were fair and square, that our terms answered to the name of "easy." All this, as you might gather, is very encouraging. It gives us a grand incentive to carry on, and confidence that we are headed in the right direction. Just where we'll end up, heaven only knows, (there's no use trying to discover too many things in one day). At any rate, we know that folks may continue to come to our store and receive the same brand of service in the future that they have always enjoyed in the past. You know the variety: Grade A—Paseurized, from contented clerks.

This is the time of year when lawns need a dressing of bone and wood ashes.

And it won't be long before it needs a set of Hickory Furniture. We have two kinds—1. Finished, 2. unfinished, for those adept with the paint brush.

House-cleaning time—a fine occasion for the broom manufacturer, but pretty hard on the "little woman." Why not give her a break this year and order one of the new Bee Vac Vacuum Cleaners? A phone call will deliver one of the 1930 models to your home for a free trial.

Rugs, linoleums, fine furniture—everything to add beauty to your home.

Mrs. E. W. Lutz: "It's my birthday today, and you haven't remembered."

Mr. E. W. Lutz: "My dear, how should I remember? You don't look a day older."

Which is very clever, to be sure, but not so clever as going home with some timely gift, selected at our store.

John M. Kirwan says "The old-fashioned man who used to get up with the lark now has a son who at about the same time comes in from one."

And in remodeling your home, remember that a Heatrola installed in the living room will insure many winters of healthful, whole-house warmth.

Speaking of Heatrola, reminds us that it looks as though Honey Adams and her pals are going to get a chance at the big radio contest. Keep posted by tuning in WLW each Friday evening at 9:30 E. S. T.
